LOCATION 1

Our trail today begins on the site of a former burlesque bar
Named after a vintage vehicle, though neither a bike or a car.

Head south and zig zag your way down Littlegate and Faulkner,
Then Thames Street and Butterwyke Place till you see the river.

Follow the path along the water and past the river garden,

Walk south-west and turn left: you'll soon join Whitehouse Road
And just after the Basketball court turn right in adventure mode.

There you'll walk a while, peeking at colourful leaves and berries
Until you reach an overpass as green as the surrounding prairies.

Up, across, and down you'll go, for on the other side you'll find
A fourteen acre park with many community activities to unwind.

LOCATION 3

Now retrace your steps, all the way, to the Basketball court
And onto Whitehouse Road again, resume your transport!

This time though you shall head east past the little penguin
And all the way to the road which leads down to Abingdon.

But take a left and walk up north until your slow & steady arrival
At a famous pub, a bridge and island that inspired many titles.
