LOCATION 1

Our trail today begins, where tuxes and dresses are reborn,
Walk south and watch the floor, for bronze jewels which adorn

The pavement with icons and idioms, scoops and stories told
Till under your eyes and over a wall clashing colours unfold.

Horns of Plenty, live and vivid, show tunes, times, and feelings.
While to your left, stands a palace home to indie screenings.

Now come back to Cowley Road, and make your way down south.
Our next stop popped up while people covered nose and mouth.

Take a left on the street where separates become one,
Followed by a quick right, when into Collins Street you run.

Walk past the market and on your right you'll find a Games Hall,
Circle the building for behind it lies a tribute on a colourful wall.

LOCATION 3

Retrace your steps, all the way, up to Union Street
Turn right and past rows of houses, till a park you meet.

(Remind yourself to throw a glance back from time to time
For on a wall Mother Nature shines in colours all sublime.)

Once near the park, take a left and at its tip explore
A large stone to volunteers in the Spanish Civil War.
